Mindful Teaching Tips

Some students may be less aware of how stress affects their bodies. Give time throughout the week to practice this but doing the Magical Moshlight Body Scan again or trying a different piece of Moshi content. Moshi Moments are shorter segments that could fit well into the schedule.

Teaching Transcript

After listening to the story, Magical Moshlight Body Scan, hand out a piece of paper with a silhouette of a body on it to each student. Discuss with the class ways in which stress affects our body in different ways. Ask children to write all the ways stress might affect our bodies within the silhouette. This can be done in the style of a word cloud if you want. It might be useful to explore colours and how these can reflect our mood when we feel certain emotions.

Ask the children to take a photo of their finished silhouette.

Open the app, Doink Greenscreen and tap the + icon in the top right corner to start a new project.

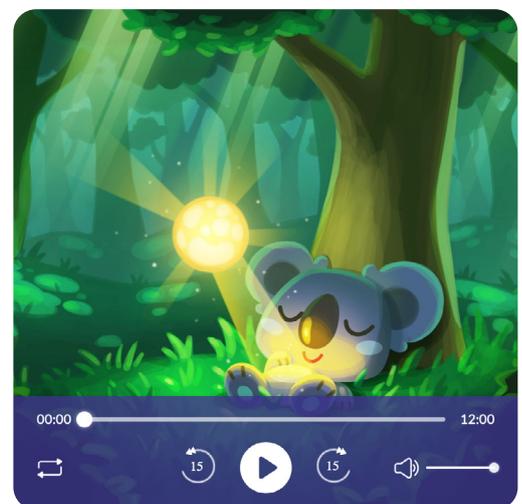

On the top layer, tap the + and add the video of the children with the green card.

On the second layer, add the image of the silhouette.

The app will make the green card on the first layer invisible revealing the silhouette. If you need to adjust the size of the silhouette just pinch your fingers on the screen.

The finished video can then be saved and should show the children revealing all the ways in which stress affects them.

This can be adapted so the silhouette is full of ways in which we can overcome stress and things we can do to relax. Making a video that promotes how children can relax their bodies.

Home Time Activity

After a discussion about all the ways to relax, encourage children to unwind and relax at home. If you do not have the Moshi app, you can download it and start a free trial and also access some content on the Moshi YouTube channel.
